in refusing to give the usual certificate, but in that respect, you will act as you may be advised, & on your own responsibility.

The only alteration in the present Books is the apportioning the sum to be paid off each individual holding, to each of the Life owners, which was omitted in the first set of Books, - and, as this alteration in no way affects the interests of any of the parties concerned, but merely supplies a deficiency, such authority as you allude to is deemed quite unnecessary in the present case.

I am Sir

Your obedient

Humble Servant
