Dear Sir I received both your last letters in due course and would have answered the first of them immediately after it reached my hands, but that I have been suffering this some time past under a severe attack of Ophthalmia which prevented me from writing, or doing any business whatever, and this must be my apology for an seeming delay in answering you in courtesy on my part. But as my eyes are now (Thank God) a good deal better, I take the earliest opportunity of sending you the extract from the Appendix Book of Kinosh which you required; carefully compared with the original by my own eye so that I hope by its assistance to fill up your schedule; whenever you can manage the person who copied it for me. I think it would be

I am sure I have their names placed in your list of Benefactors. I have no one employed to do my business, or would willingly do as you have suggested that I should with respect to them. I shall only add that with best regards for your welfare I have the honor to remain Dear Sir yours very faithfully J.D.
